ANGELIN SOOSAIPILLAI

As a strategic planner and change agent, Angelin helps a wide range of employers across Canada (public sector organizations, non-profits, corporations, law firms, universities) identify barriers to equity, diversity, and inclusion (EDI) in their organization. She has worked with several employers to develop data-driven strategic plans and lead large-scale transformation.

Angelin has worked with experts in law and human resources, with a specialty in designing EDI programs to address systemic barriers affecting lawyers from equity-seeking groups. Prior to joining CCDI, Angelin was a Professional Development Lawyer at the Ontario Bar Association (OBA), where she designed and launched the Inclusive Leader Series – the OBA's first series of EDI programs – to accelerate a culture shift in the legal profession and justice system.

She holds an LLB from the University of Birmingham Law School and a BA (Hons) from the University of Toronto.

Eric has over 20 years experience as a corporate and securities lawyer, including over 10 years as the General Counsel for large mutual fund companies.

His practice and experience includes change management, risk management, corporate governance, and human resources management, in addition to the typical duties of a corporate counsel.

He has frequently commented on legislative and regulatory proposals relating to investment management and enjoys strong relationships with regulators.

He is a member of the board of TanenbaumCHAT, a high school in Toronto.
